Last Updated February 1, 2017

Created by the famed designers of New York's Central Park, Frederick Law Olmsted and Calvert Vaux, Jackson Park plays host to this jewel that sits on Chicago's South Lakefront.

Located directly on the sands of Lake Michigan this open-air facility features grand porticos overlooking the bluest of waters.

Choose the covered Promenade with sun-drenched balconies on the second floor, where the breeze of nautical waters sweeps you away or either of the majestic courtyards on the ground level for a whimsical affair.

This multifaceted south side gem has played host to formal dining, community events, and family functions.
